

PICTURE THIS

is a series of hands-on, interdisciplinary photography classes for teen youth in the foster system.

PICTURE THIS

was developed to support rehabilitative enrichment programming for students who, for whatever reason, don't have access to digital devices.

PICTURE THIS

helps students in need learn to use their creativity to further self-reflection, transformation, growth, and self-esteem.

PICTURE THIS

Over the course of 12 classes, artist Michael Llewellyn guides students through the 500-year relationship between scientific discovery and photography, on a journey of self-reflection and individual creativity.

each student
by name.

Students retain
their creations,
when the program ends.

PICTURE THIS

classes begin with a short slide show presentation followed by hands-on creative exercises.

Some lessons are suitable for outdoor field trips.

Some lessons transform the classroom into a darkroom.

All lessons incorporate the students' personal interests.

exercise subject matter is sourced from an introductory census of favorites
including celebrity, musician, snack, logo, color, animal,
etc.

PICTURE THIS'

exercises build hand-eye skills from tracing through to .gif creation and offer both individual and group projects.

In the field, students learn and practice framing and point of view with instamatic cameras.

Subjects include names, shadows, a therapy horse or, for those not used to large animals, PICTURE THIS' Favorite-Brand-Logo horse.
